A Global Leader in Renewables

Bracewell is a leading international law firm with an award-winning power practice. A cornerstone of that practice is the execution of renewable energy projects as well as emerging technology projects such as battery storage and hydrogen.

We Know Energy® is not just our tagline, it is our central tenet. Bracewell is a recognised global leader in the renewable energy sector and we are particularly proud of our renewable energy team, which frequently works on “first-of-a-kind” transactions for high-profile clients and is setting the standard in the market for legal excellence and transaction execution.

Our power team is a global leader on projects across the full spectrum of the renewable energy sector and applies their in-depth local and regional knowledge to deliver commercially orientated legal excellence on every transaction. Our extensive experience results in a pragmatic, constructive and commercially orientated approach that will assist our clients to identify issues, find practical solutions, analyse risk allocation, prepare competitive bids, thoroughly diligence potential acquisitions and successfully develop or acquire projects.

We have experience acting for the full spectrum of participants in the renewable energy sector, including sponsors and developers, independent power producers, utilities, lenders (including DFIs, multilaterals, ECAs, commercial banks and Islamic lenders), governments, private equity and infrastructure funds, service companies and contractors.

Bracewell’s industry focus enables our lawyers to maintain state-of-the-art knowledge of the commercial and legal challenges faced by our clients, as well as utilise their extensive “on-the-ground” expertise, to provide innovative solutions that are considerate of local requirements and precedents.
