

We've got your project covered.

No matter the asset class, region, size, complexity, or stage in the project life cycle, Torys' market-leading team provides 360-degree insight into your project.

Overview

Torys is sought after as counsel for the most significant, innovative projects in the market. Our multidisciplinary projects team is made of leaders in the space, known for their work helping plan, procure, build and finance major capital projects across North America. The combined strengths of this experienced team gives clients best-in-class expertise on every dimension of project development, from strategic planning, permitting, procurement and financing advice, to M&A, regulatory, environmental, real estate and Indigenous matters.

We are market leaders. Torys is known for transactions where public and private financing and funding are combined. Our team has been active on more than 100 infrastructure projects in Canada, the U.S. and internationally, including many first-of-type transactions.

Experience with regulatory and development approval regimes. This includes extensive experience securing complex project approvals on schedule, and evaluating the risks for investors and other stakeholders.

We know every step of the project lifecycle. We work on complex infrastructure projects and our capabilities cover all project stages: planning and managing the procurement process, negotiating the project agreement, subcontracts and financing documents, structuring equity arrangements, and more.

Experience across asset classes. From traditional infrastructure asset classes—such as transit, transport facilities, waste and wastewater—we also work in new sectors on innovative, first-of-kind projects, including Indigenous developments, green infrastructure, power, oil and gas, and telecom. We also have unparalleled depth and breadth of experience in M&A and project development.

Projects benefit from our 360-degree perspective. Our clients benefit from our broad market awareness through our deep experience advising consortiums, governments, developers, lenders and contractors on their most complex and novel projects. This gives us comprehensive insight on the business, political and legal challenges each stakeholder may face through the process of creating and implementing infrastructure solutions.

Unique North American platform. From offices in Toronto, Calgary and New York, we give clients the unique benefit of cross-regional perspective and advice. We work with both Canadian and U.S.-based clients on their Canadian and U.S. infrastructure projects.
